

Highlights of the toolkit for policymakers

It is great that policy makers care about what companies need to know and to do to make safer toys!

This toolkit is very practical and initially targeted to companies, but it may also help policy makers to understand what chemicals management entails from an industry perspective and what are the steppingstones for companies to improve. This understanding helps developing new legislation that is well implementable, e.g. when designing requirements for tracking chemicals use in companies. The legislation section may be inspiring for policy makers too, as it shows how companies can implement the (multiple) requirements and provides links to legislation in other countries that can be used as reference for laws in the own country.

Policy makers are invited to browse through the various sections, maybe starting with information on what CoCs are #1.1. Guidance Understanding CoCs.
